LEAD TRAINER WEB DEVELOPMENT (80% - 100%) for our new Zürich based programme

The training approach used by Opportunity comprises the following key concepts:

An Opportunity trained developer is above all a good practitioner who has expert knowledge of Internet culture with the technical capabilities expected in the sector. They are able to update their skills, work in a team and solve complex problems.

The way we ensure that the trainees become good developers is through:

- ACTIVE LEARNING: practical exercises, projects, collaborative learning, peer-to-peer, etc.
- A MULTI-DISCIPLINARY TEAM: The expert instructor, technical experts, a coach and a jobcoach.
- THE COMPANY AT THE HEART OF THE JOURNEY: company involvement in the programme with activities such as reversed interaction, immersion periods, interview simulation, job dating or meetups, etc.

As the lead trainer:

Your role will be to provide web developer training. You will help participants carry out their projects on a day-to-day basis. You will also be responsible for ensuring that the course and learner progress are rolled out correctly.

In this respect, your main tasks will be to:

- Participate in recruiting trainees
- Be accountable for the technical and andragogical coherence of the programme
- Lead collective training sessions
- Assess the progress of trainees

- Liaise with the technical experts and others contributing to the programme
- Ensure coordination internally with colleagues supporting the trainees, as well as liaising with others as needed.

You will also be required to:

- Encourage meetings between participants and the developer community (meetups, participation in local events, etc.)
- Monitor and guide the group in its daily activities: learning by teaching activities, workshops, meetings, etc.
- Participate in enhancing OPPORTUNITY's training practice via meetings of the trainer community
- Contribute to supplying the Simplon trainer Github for trainees
